IMPERIAL RAILWAY PROGRESS On the 27th of February, the first locomotive yas run over the large bridge at Lan ho. The duy following possenger trains crossed and have been doing so since.

. Many accounts given of this underniting the time to time have been so palpably erroneous that we have taken care to secure the following details from the most antheatic sources. The work was started on the 21st December. 891 and with the exception of some 18 weeks delay from floods and severe frosts has been steadily carried forward until completion. The in the clear 5 of 200 feet and 10 of 100 fet. All the girders are of mild steel manufactured by Messrs Handyside of Derby, under the special inspection of Sir Benspecialist for the prenmatic sinking of caissons under the larger piers, most of which were sunk down to the rook, touched at depths of from 20 to 60 feet below water level. The piers are all of mountain limestone quarried in the vicinity, and coment mortar of the best quality has been used throughout. No peremony took place at the opening of the new line as it is intended to have the formal opening when H.E. the Vicercy visits the line some two months later. With the exception of a few girders still to be placed in position on bridges near Shan-haikuan, the line may be considered as completed to that point to which trains have been running ainoo last autumb. The Bridge-works at Shan-hai-kuan are being glowly completed and will shortly be capable of manufacturing from imported metal all intore girders needed by the Railway Department.

The temporary shops and stores at Lau-chou will be removed to Shan-hai-kuan within the next few weeks. The station, in every way superior to any others yet built on the line, is situated within 1,000 yards of the Great Wall, through su opening in which the line is being constructed towards Kin-chou.
